Vinka Damiandra A. Larasati joined SSEK in 2018 after having previously interned at a prominent law firm in Singapore, where she worked on international arbitration matters.

Since joining SSEK, Vinka has been extensively involved in a wide range of projects, including mergers and acquisitions, foreign investment, commercial litigation, arbitration, financing, and general corporate and commercial matters. Vinka has played a significant role in numerous high-profile transactions for companies in various business sectors, including the tourism, technology, manufacturing, banking, insurance, payment system, industrial estate, and pharmaceutical sectors. She has represented major Indonesian state-owned enterprises as well as Fortune 500 and Forbes Global 2000 companies, including General Electric, Mastercard, NEC Corporation, Procter & Gamble, and Restaurant Brands International (owner of fast-food brands such as Burger King, Popeyes, and Tim Hortons).

At university, Vinka was active in various international moot court competitions and student organisations. During her second year of university, Vinka participated in a summer program at King's College London focusing on international commercial law.

Vinka is fluent in English and Indonesian.
